One hot evening, the children were out in the playfield, running races, playing hopscotch picking flowers, and making daisy-chains. When they began to feel tired and hungry, they got milk and cake out of the teachers basket, and had a longrest on the dry, warm grass.

“How these buttercups Shine!” said Dora; “they look like gold!”

“Gold-cups, they ought to be called, not butercups,” said harry.

“They look like cups, don't they” asked Vinny.

“But they wouldnt hold water like real cups.” Mary continued, Look at this one; it is in 5 pieces.”

“Five? Oh yes!” Said Dora, “And look underneath. there is another sort of cup with five leaves in it.”

“Only it is not bright and golden,” Henry said, “but green hairy.”
