Frank was one day walking with his mother. They came to a pretty garden. Frank looked in. He saw that it had clean gravel walks, and beds of beautiful flowers all in bloom. He called to his mother, and said, "Mother, come and look at this pretty garden. I wish I might open the gate, and walk in."

The gardener, being near, heard what Frank said. He kindly invited Frank and his mother to come into the garden. Frank's mother thanked the man. Turning to her son, she said, "Frank, if I take you to walk in this garden, you must take care not to meddle with anything in it."
