Read the passages. Then, circle the point of view.

1. John Carpenter did not like to buy toys that somebody else had made. He liked the fun of making them himself. The thought that they were his own work delighted him. Tom Austin, one of his playmates, thought a toy was worth nothing unless it cost a great deal of money. He never tried to make anything, but bought all his toys. "Come and look at my horse," said he, one day. "It cost a dollar, and it is such a beauty! Come and see it." John was soon admiring his friend's horse; and he was examining it carefully, to see how it was made. The same evening he began to make one for himself.

2. James Selton was one of the most insolent boy in the village where he lived. He would rarely pass people in the street without being guilty of some sort of abuse. If a person was well dressed he would cry out, "Dandy!" If a person's clothes was dirty or torn, he would throw stones at him, and annoy him in every way.
